WASHINGTON.

No Bad Feeling Among the Retiring Public Officials.

It would naturally be supposed that the Democrats, now that they have taken charge of the government, would cease trying to alarm the country over the financial outlook, but such is not the case. Ever Democratic member of the House Committee on Ways and Means signed the alarmof the result of the investigation made by that committee into the present and prospective condition of the Treasury. This report states the belief of its signers to be that a deficit of between $300,000,000 and said Wally. $400,000,000 will exist on July 1,1894. There are reasons for the belief that the principal object of this exagera ted report is to prepare the public fo the $500,000,000 issue of bonds be lieved to be contemplated by the new Administration. The Republicans of the Committee presented a minority report, very conservative in its nature, which entitles them to the gratitude of every well-wisher of the country. It calls attention to the figures of the Secretary of the Treasury, which accompany the report, and says the conclusions of the majority seem Wallie in the air, "You are solid." wholly unwarranted and misleading, and concludes with these sensible words: In fact there seems to be an utter lack of evidence to justify any of the criticisms of the majority upon the statement of the Secretary. which shows a surplus in the Treasury on June the 30, 1894. On the basis of the statement of the Secretary of the Treasury it would seem that

Ex-Secretary Rusk, who is considered a personal friend by every employe of department of Agriculture, was this week given a lasting testimonial of their friendship for him in the shape of a handsome silver tea ssrvice. Mr. Cleveland has not been in office a week yet, but he has shown the office-seeking brigade that he intends to take his own time in making appointments, and a considerable number of them have taken the hint, filed their papers and gone home, to wait as patiently as they may for the offices that may never come. It was given out early this week that Mr. Cleveland had determined to allow the federal officials, such as Marshals, masters, who are appointed for a four year term to serve out their time before appointing their successors, a rule which was first established by President Haves, and which has been generally followed since his administration If this rule be strictly followed the new Government Printer will not be appointed until late in April, meanwhile candidates for that very desirable position are increasing daily. UNDER CROSS FIRE.

A Thrilling Story of the battle of Gettysburg related.

As Exchange of Shots at Long Inter-vals, Followed by an Awful Din of Battle Walting to meet the Charge.

[PENNSYLVANIA GRIT.] On the morning of the 3d of July, 100,000 on the field of Gettysburg knew that Lee would attact that day. By 10 o'clock in the forenoon every one knew where the blow would fall. The topography of the field, the bloody struggles on the wings, the movement of the troops and the batteriesthere were a dozen signs to indicate what was coming. From daylight to 9 o'clock there was a sputter of musketry along the front as the sharpshooters and skirmishers fired at long range. From 9 to 11 the cavalry on the wings had the fight all to themselves. From to to 10 a gun here and there shelled the Confederate skirmishers out of the ditches in which they were hiding, but there seemed to be no fighting anywhere. From 11 to 12 Lee was massing 120 field pieces in front of Longstreet and Hill to open on Hancock. Meade posted 100 guns to re- knee. ply, but to fire slowly.

At noon a few couriers were riding furiously in different directions, but not a gun was being fired. The men in the line ate their dinner from their haversacks, and the artillery horses nibbled at the grass as they were unchecked by their drivers. Scores of men had pocket telescopes. These they passed from hand to hand, and every gun on the Confederate side was located. "They are going to batter us with shot and shell and then charge. Lie close to the ground. The shot will fall short or go over us."

So came the word along the lines. It was a wise precaution. But for it no one could tell what would have Out in the stable giving my goat happened. From half past 12 to I sharp, the boom of a single gun echoelover the battlefield and a shell came screaming over our heads and exploded 200 feet in our rear. That was the signal. Ir is disgusting to hear the fawning whine of the whiskyite that Prohibition does not prohibit, that men violate the Prohibition law, and that to prevent such a thing as a broken law, the coldest weather in the past winwhy, just take the law out of the way altogether.

THE whiskyites all at once pretend a great love for the law and its observance. Well, the community is indeed glad they do love the law, for to tell the truth the public had never accused the majority of them of possessing any such sentiment.

THOSE who are now favoring the saloon, all at once pretend to have great reverence for the law. They say the Prohibition law is violated, and in order to keep men from violating it further don't punish them for their violations, but remove the law.

PROF. WILBUR R. SMITH, of Lexington, and John F. Hagan, of Ashland, were appointed World's Fair Commissioners by Gov. Brown Monday. The appointments are good ones, and Central and Eastern Kentucky are highly pleased.

MR. CLEVELAND has never been distinguished for any great love he bore his native land. It seems he is happiest when he receives the fulsome praise of the English who rejoice in his successes and mourn at his defeats. His most recent blow against America and for Britian was the withdrawal of the HawaiinTreaty from the Senate.

WE hope the next meeting for Dec-No Creek covered herself with glory last year in the way of entertaining the crowd and would no doubt be glad to have the meeting again but it is Hartford's turn this time. The members of Preston Morton Post will put forth extra exertions to make the affair the most marked success of any yet held.

On the heels of the Decoration Day comes the Fourth of July with the Big Reunion, which lasts two days the fourth and fifth. Hartford's citizens will do all in their power to make the Reunion a success and it is well for those who are expected to lead in the matter to be casting about for some one man to manage the affair. We have a man in mind who would make a capital manager and at the proper time he will be suggested.

ELSEWHERE will be found a few of the many favorable expressions of our contemporaries regarding the application of Dr. J. S. Coleman for the mission to Cuba. Dr. Coleman is eminently qualified for the position then follow for their share of the and would reflect credit not only upon his native State but upon the Government whose representative he would be. Notwithstanding the disrepute in which the practice has come to be held, a crowd of boys in one of the schools of the county "turned the teacher out," and when he and they failed to agree about the amount of the treat, they proceeded to "duck" him. They cut the ice, for it was in ter, and plunged him under. Last week he came before the Grand Jury to have the gay young bloods indicted. We have not heard whether they were or not but they should have been. It is time this tyranny had received the stern rebuke of the law as it has that of public opinion. Years ago custom could have been pleaded in its behalf—not so now, for it is not custom. It is the rare exception not the rule. Teach the world practically as well as theoretically that the teacher of the common school has some rights which even a crowd of thoughtless boys are

Those who are in favor of open saloons argue that saloons will be a benefit to ALL the business interests of the town. How will they be a benefit to all? Will the sale of whisky increase the products of the farm, the shop or the mill in either quantity or price? Then it cannot benefit our farmer friends and thus indirectly benefit our merchants. Impossible, absurd! Will it increase the work of the millman? Will the sale of whisky in Hartford enable the flouring mill to dispose of more flour? Will the sale of whisky augment the appetite of the people for wheat rolls? Will the sale of whisky cause more wagons, buggies and plows to break, thereby giving the blacksmiths more work? If a man comes to town with oration Day will be held in Hartford. a few dollars to purchase supplies for his family, will the value of his money be doubled if he squander a part of his hard earnings in a grog-shop? Hardly so! Will the sale of whisky the necessaries of life, thereby giving return to the open saloon by voting our merchants extended trade? This wouldscarcely seem probable. Are those who might be attracted here by the sale of whisky calculated to benefit ihe town? Is the man who comes to town alone because he finds a saloon here, very apt to patronize the dry > goods store or the grocery? Will the sale of whisky bring a larger number of pupils to Hartford College? Will men who seek a quiet, moral community in which to educate their sons and daughters come among us more readi. ly if we have saloons? Are men who spend their earning with the saloonkeeper more likely to settle their livery, hotel and doctor bills? Now, if the farmers around us are not benefitted, if the miller, blacksmiths, merchants, teachers, hotel and livery men are not benefitted then who are? Well, the saloon-keeper of course, spoils of blood, the Town Marshal, the Jailor and the lawyers. And when these are numbered all are numbered. WHERE ARE WE AT? One Sunday evening a few months ago the town was thrown into intense excitement over the report that Wes Callaban had killed Crit Park in a drunken fight at Hayti. It was soon learned, however, that Park was not killed, but that he had been very as good as can be found in Kentucky, was called and taxed to the utmost to save the negro's life. Callahan was house, and he with Park and others were drunk, an altercation took place, knives were drawn, an ax in the NOTWITHSTANDING the repeated hands of one citizen was brought into

In view of these cases, aggravating cases as they are, wherein the law has suffered violence without redress we are constrained to ask: "Where are we at, anyhow?"

The Whisky Question.

It is a matter of grave importance remnant of barbarism and thus lay town of Hartford is to be again subthere be any question as to which will be the better condition of affairs, the right to sell or the prohibition? To my mind it is hardly a debatable of no sale. We are told that we have several "Blind Tigers" in town, which may or may not be true, but this will not justify the opening of the whisky traffic.

Why should we, in order to escape one evil fly into a worse one by many degrees? The evidences of the illicit sale of the accursed and death dealing poison are by no means a very patent exhibition, but the traffic is hidden and the drinking must be done elsewhere than at the place of sale which exempts us from the usual noise and danger that are always attendant upon a place of public sale enough? of intoxicants. There is, and can be no comparison between the two evils referred to. Is there a "Blind Tiger" in town, still our wives and daughters go along the streets with impunity, which could not be done if there were open saloons.

If "Blind Tigers" do exist in our town as is claimed, then we, by all means should address ourselves to the speedy suppression of them, using every fair means to accomplish this much desired object. Never, in order to escape the "Blind Tiger", rush into the open saloon traffic. But it is claimed that men will swear falsely in order to shield those who sold them whisky and therefore to remove the temptation to swear falsely it is better to open the license sys-

We take pleasure in introducing to the trading public, Mr. M. M. Kahn, of Kahn's Clothing House. He came here three and a half years ago an entire stranger, beginning business September 15, 1889 and by, pluck, perseverance and fair dealing has won for his house a large and growing question and is easily settled in favor custom. His success is an example of what close application to business will achieve.

The readers of the REPUBLICAN are everywhere acquainted with the name of M. M. Kahn, for he is a business man who recoginizes the virtue of printer's ink but many of them have no personal acquaintance with-him and will be pleased with this likeness of the veteran dry goods man.

Killed a Deer.

[OWENSBORO MESSENGER.] Joe Mullen brought down a nice bulk of gameat one shot at the Hanning distillery this morning. At an early hour he noticed a deer at the chute crossing from the Indiana to the Kentucky side. He waited for the "fine old fellow" to get in good range and fired. The first load took effect in the deer's neck and would have caused its death, but Mr. Mullen didn't want to take any risk and so let fly with another load which entered the deer's body center. About 9:30 o'clock another deer was seen on the river bank just below the Hanning. Some of the hands at the distillery and some men who were unloading a barge of corn got the animal penned in a corner and caught it

How the Races Originated. M. de Quatrefages, the French ethnologist, has made public his conclusions with regard to the origin and distribution of the human race. He says all mankind came from a central mass in northern Asia, and that there were three fundamental types -black, white and yellow. three types scattered over the world and intermingled, forming, in course of time, 72 distinct races of human beings, which is the number of races classified by our best ethnologists in the tabulations brought down to the year 1890. The learned De Quatrefages believes that the American Indians came from "a blending of white and yellow races with a local quaternary race." Say, M. de Quatrefages, where did that local quaternary race originate? - Philadelphia

The Smuggling Mania Crops Out. Mrs. Mapleson, the prima donna, has invented an apparatus for concealing the beautiful little tailless, shaggy black Russian dog given her by the Princess of Monaco. It is in the shape of a Gladstone bag, with a light, well perforated canvas cover. This drops down from the handle and reveals an inner case of network, stretched apart so as to afford comfortable space for the small animal to lie down or sit up, as he may elect. In this he is smuggled into hotels. Mrs. Mapleson calls it the "evader," and had some idea of patenting the invention, but sympathy with other dog owners induced her to give it publicity.-Boston Budget.

Kings Are Not Very Well Known. The king of Italy is generally regarded as an able officer, with much knowledge of foreign politics and some firmness, but that description does not constitute a character, and of his remaining qualities, except that he is a good manager of finance and has in him somewhere the Savoyard tendency to plot, nothing seems to be clearly discerned. Even of the emperor of Germany, with his fondness for being visible, for rushing about and for making speeches, little is known, or rather much is Call on us for hauling known, but the knowledge produces

To Prevent Fever Sores. Fever sores, when they are allowed to develop, are very painful and most disfiguring, and yet they can easily be cured in the beginning by keeping a ball of saltpeter on hand and at their first appearance moistening the ball with water and rubbing it on the spot.—New York Telegram. Poor Rich Men Countless young men who coveted everything of the late Jay Gould except his coffin may be surprised to learn that Mr. Gould generally wanted and needed money quite as much as they. Property isn't money, as many able business men have often learned to their cost and misery. The larger a man's operations and the more frequently he wants to make a "quick turn" or a "big strike" the oftener does he feel poverty pangs quite as keen as those of the young man who longs to sport a trotting horse and buggy, but has to content himself with a secondhand bicycle.

Chauncey M. Depew is credited with the statement that the late William H. Vanderbilt, one of the three richest men in the United States, was always poor and in debt. Many business men can understand this strange statement, though the young men aforesaid will take no stock in it until they become business men themselves .- Harper's Weekly.

Forging Antiquities. The forgery of antiquities has been a recognized industry in Europe for many years, but it is little known that the famous English "Flint Jack" has his counterpart in this country in one Burnett, "a small, dull, yellow man," as a neighbor described him. who lives on the French Broad river in North Carolina. For a long time he was in the habit of riding to the towns and selling "fake" arrowheads to dealers and visitors, as well as mortars and pestles that had the appearance of having been long buried But he lost one customer by taking him a mounted figure of pottery that he said he had unearthed from an Indian mound. He had made the mistake of putting shoes on the horse.

A Method of Procedure.

Some time ago there was a bank failure at Dallas," said Alex Somers of Temple, Tex., at the St. James. There was a pompous, ignorant man who was one of the bank's directors at the time of its suspension. He was seen coming down the steps from the directors' room immediately after the doors of the bank had been closed, and an anxious depositor but tonholed him and asked:

" 'Now, what are you going to do for us creditors? How much shall we get?'

'Sir,' responded the director, 'we shall immediately proceed to collects the exits of the concern, pay the debts and make a practical division of the surplus."—St. Louis Republic.

Moore-Milligan
On Wednesday morning at 9:15 o'clock, Mr. Harry Moore, of Paradise, and Miss Lula Milligan, of this place, were married at the home of the bride, two miles north of town. A considerable number of friends and relatives gathered in and the ceremony was pronounced in a very imposing manner by Rev. G. B. McDonald. Mr. Moore is a successful young business man and is to be congratulated upon his wise choice of a helpmate. The bride is a popular young lady of great moral and mental good bargain. The Losey Entertainment. A few weeks ago what bids fair to be a very important event in the history of our town took place. We mean the organization on a permanent footing, of the Hartford Lecture Club. The object of the organization is to bring within the reach of the people of Hartford and Ohio county the advantage of a series of high class entertainments. The institution is a worthy one and deserves to live long. It gives to our people something the like of which we see and hear too litle. The Club secured for their first of New York, and the meeting held on Monday night, last. A large crowd gathered early to hear the treat that every one felt was in store. The rostrum had been artistically decorated and presented quite a pleasing appearance. Promptly at 8:15 the speaker was introduced by Prof. J. W. Lytle, President of the Club, and for an hour and a half Prof. Losey held complete sway over his audience. His pieces were varied and appropried with the heartiest of applause. It would be difficult to choose the best from a collection so uniformly good. The only objection offered to the entertainment is that it was too short, which in itself is the highest possicredit for their excellent management of the affair, and the people owe a debt of gratitude for the rare treat. We shall look forward with pleasant anticipation to the next in the series of entertainments. Let it come quickly.

TAYLOR MINES. In your valuable paper of last week, correspondent from this place seems to think that there is but one family in this town. B. H., I will tell you that there is more than one family in Taylor Mines. Our town has been very much excited for the last two days. The first to excite our quiet little village was the arrival, last Saturday of two toughs with a jug of liquor. Their names were Smith and Daugherty. Smith has been in town before. He went to Dick Brown's and staid all night and after staying all night he decided that he wanted Dick's wife, and they fixed up and left for parts unknown, she leaving her baby. Smith has been married twice and has left both wives and stolen another. He is a tough. The town was thrown into a fever of excitement this evening. A little child of John May's and a larger boy, from Hamilton, came to town to visit a sick brother. The little child went out to play and the big boy got the five year old child and run off and left it and it was found at Mrs. Martin's, more than a mile away. When the child came to the house, Mrs. Martin sent the news to town and what seemed to be a fruitless search for the little wanderer was turned into a general rejoicing; and especially, were the father and mother rejoiced. I will close for this time, hoping that this will not find the waste basket.

A Maxim That Is Good at Times. The bugaboo maxim of childhood, "Little folks should be seen and not heard," is, like a great many other things, very good in its place, and that place is most decidedly the table when other guests are present.

Dearly as parents may love to listen to the prattle of their little ones, they should remember that the whole world does not consider small Mary and John quite as great won-ders as they do.—Philadelphia Times.

A recipe for Beauty.

A recipe for beauty! Who shall compound it? It is easy to say that we must have good health, good temper, good breeding, happiness. Ruskin says pithily, "You can never make a girl lovely unless you make her happy." Tranquillity of life, ability to rest, freedom from heavy burdens, luxury, these help; but, after all, beauty, like glory, is the untranslatable word.—Harper's Bazar.

A Big Towing Fee. In November, 1891, the whaleback teamship Wetmore lost her rudder steamship Wetmore lost her rudder 30 miles south of the mouth of the Columbia river. The steamship Zambesi, from Victoria, B. C., to Portland, made a cable fast with some difficulty and towed her across the bar of the Columbia to a safe anchorage. She was awarded $20,000 salvage.—New York Evening Sun.

a great day. From early morn she chased the Buck

ters. But in the chase she ran a bowl, and her paw dipped in it, so that every part of the wound is saturated and brought under its influence. There will never be any soreness—no swelling—no matterating—no "laying up." She can run again to-morrow. Is such a remedy worth anything? It cures just as readily any fresh wound, any cut, bruise, burn, scald or old sore. Internally it cures any colic, dyspepsia, pain in stomach, diarrhæa, dysentery or flux. Also it cures promptly any sorethroat, bronchitis or consumption (if lungs not already disorganized.) In a word it cures ANY INFLAMMATION anywhere and the disease, whatever its name, vanishes. No inflammation—no pain, no swelling, no disease. Could anything be more simple or satisfactory? Miners, mill hands and everybody need it. If satisfaction not given, money refunded. Contains no narcotics or mineral poisons. Safe and certain. Never disappoints. Take a bottle home to-day.

TOWN TATTLER.

Has it ever occurred to you that many times moral and intellectual worth counts for very little with a young lady when she chooses her gentleman associates or husband? Too many times young men of very questionable morals, fast young men, corrupt, lecherous gambling young men are welcomed in the parlor of the first ladies of the land and sometimes their company is even almost openly sought, while the young men of good habits, good breeding, good sense, good morals; young men who are noble in heart and virtuous in life knock in vain at the threshhold of these fashionable homes, seeking the association or perchance even the hand of the fair inmate. Why is this thus? Can it be the young ladies are ignorant of the life of those gay young men? Then, shame on their fathers and brothers who know it and who keep their daughters and sisters ignorant of things they should fully understand. Is it because the moral young man is not sufficiently polished or is it due to a careless depraved taste on the part of the young lady, who, in short, connives at the wanton life of her unworthy suitor and relishes his suggestive conduct? These things should not be. Many a young lady has lost an opportunity of winning a good husband by receiving the attentions of a man without honor. Girls, be brave and womanly, snub every man whom you have reason to believe has not a pure heart. Consider him a pearl of great price, who, though he be not so wealthy nor so polished, offers to bring as his gift to the matrimonial altar a character unstained. Cling to him as to your

Every man in Hartford who expects to vote for whisky should have heard the declamation of Miss Laura Render at the Baptist Sunday School Sunday morning. But as a majority of those of our esteemed citizens who are expected to cast their suffrages for the spread of intemperance are not distinguished for any great regularity in attending either Church or Sunday School, the piece, which, by the way, was written by Dr. Seiss, is reproduced here. Read it and then be brave enough to vote as your conscience dictates:

The history of strong drink is the depravity's worst fruits, a giant demon of destruction. Men may talk of earthquake, storms, conflagrations, famine, pestilence, despotism, and war, but intemperance in the use of Ohio. intoxicating drinks has sent a volume of misery and woe into the stream of this world's history more fearlul and terrific than any of them.

It is the Amazon and the Misissippi among the rivers of wretchedness. It is the Alexander and Napoleon among the warriers upon the peace and good of man. It is an evil which is limited to no age, no continent, no nation, no party, no sex, no period in life. It has taken the poor man at his toil, and the rich man at his desk; the senators in the halls of state, and the drayman on the streets; the young man in his festivities, and the old man in his repose, and then plunged them into a common ruin. It has raged equally in times of war and in times of peace, in periods of depression and in periods of prosperity, in republics and monarchies, among the civilized and among the savages.

Since the time that Noah came out of the ark, and planted vineyards, and drank of their wines, we read in all histories of its terrible doings, and never once lose sight of its black and bloody tracks. States have recorded enactments against it, ecclsiastical penalties have been imposed upon it, societies have succeeded societies for its extermination, but, like him whose name was Legion, no man has been able to bind it. It was strong drink that brought the original curse of servitude upon the descendants of Ham, that has eaten away the strength of empires, wasted the energies of states, blotted out the names of families, and crowded hell with tenants. Egypt, the source of science; Babylon, the wonder and glory of the world; Greece, the home of learning and of liberty; Rome, the mistress of the earth, each in its turn had its heart lacerated by this dreadful canker-worm, and thus became an easy prey to the destroyer.

It has drained tears enough to make a sea, expended treasure enough to exhaust Golconda, shed blood enough to redden the waves of every ocean, and wrung out wailing enough to make a chorus to the lamentation of the under-world. Some of the mightiest intellects, some of the most generous natures, some of the happiest homes, some of the noblest specimens of man, it has blighted and crushed, and buried in squalid wretch- Her maiden name was White.
